Let's Start!

A safari in Africa? Let's go!

Learning Outcome

Describe characteristics of different people and their jobs.

Ask your partner:

- Do you want to go to Africa?
- Where in Africa would you like to go to?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about travel and things to do on a trip.
- I can talk about or report on actions, events or people.
- I can compare two or more things.

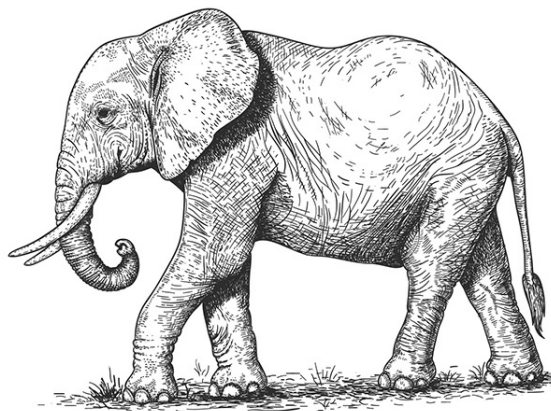

Let's Explore!

Sally chats with Peter. He wants to know all about the safari!

* To "know all about" means to want to know everything.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Peter: Sally! Tell me about the safari.

Sally: I got back today. It was the greatest! I didn't want to leave!

Peter: Which animals did you see?

Sally : We saw lions. We saw rhinos. They looked like dinosaurs. They aren't as big as dinosaurs though. They get hunted for their horns. We saw some buffalo. The older ones sometimes attack people, so we had to be careful.

Peter: Are buffaloes smaller or bigger than rhinos?

Sally: They're smaller. Rhinos are the second largest land mammal in the world. Elephants are the largest.

Peter: They're massive! They're the heaviest too. Rhinos are faster than elephants. Hey, did you see any animals take a mud bath?

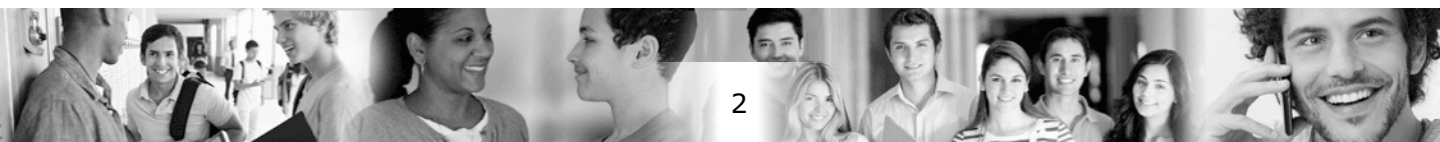

Sally: Actually, we saw a family of hippos taking a mud bath! It was the cutest thing! I snapped a photo!

Peter: You should try one!

Sally: I did. I went to the spa.

Peter: Did you get a pedicure, too?

Sally: No, Peter. I didn't get a pedicure.

Learning Points

On a Safari

A safari is a trip to observe wild animals, especially in Africa.

When you talk about a safari, you use the verb "to go":

--I went on a safari last year.

You talk about the different animals, for example:

--I saw many lions or I didn't see a cheetah.

You can talk about the geographic features:

-- I saw a large mountain!

When you talk about geographic features, you can use a variety of adjectives to describe them, for example: --stunning, breathtaking, spectacular, beautiful.

When you're talking to someone about a safari you went on, they can ask questions like:

-- What did you see?

--Did you take pictures?

Comparatives and Superlatives

You can use adjectives to compare two things. These are called comparative adjectives. You can also use adjectives to compare one item with the rest of a group. These are called superlative adjectives.

For regular comparative adjectives, you can use the structure:

- adjective (-er) than

Use this when the adjective in question is a short, one-syllable word.

e.g. small → smaller

- adjective (-ier) than

Use this if the adjective ends in -y and has two syllables.

e.g. happy → happier

- more/less + adjective + than

Use this if the adjective has 2 or more syllables. The adjective does not change.

e.g. careful → more careful, boring → less boring

There are a few exceptions, however: simple → simpler, narrow → narrower

- as + adjective + as

Use this when comparing two things that are the same regarding the adjective in question.

The adjective does not change.

e.g. I'm as fast as you.

Learning Points

For regular superlative adjectives, you can use the structure:

- the adjective (-est)

Use this when the adjective in question is a short, one-syllable word.

e.g. small → smallest

- the adjective (-iest)

Use this if the word ends in -y and has two syllables.

e.g. happy → happiest

- the most/least + adjective

Use this if the adjective has 2 or more syllables. The adjective does not change.

e.g. careful → most careful, boring → most boring

There are a few exceptions, however: simple → simplest, narrow → narrowest

There are some irregular adjectives that do not follow these rules. Please look at the chart below to find the comparative and superlative forms for common irregular adjectives.

Adjectives	Comparative	Superlative
good	better	best
bad	worse	worst
little	less	least
much	more	most
far	further / farther	furthest / farthest

Examples:

- The lion is smaller than the tiger.
- The cheetah is the fastest animal in the cat family.
- It was the best trip!
